What is the GDPR?

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will come into force in May 2018 and will update the current Data Protection Act 1998. It will put the control of personal data back into the hands of the individual, allowing a number of rights including access to their data and the ability to withdraw it. It also means that organisations cannot simply gather data without good reason and must prove that they are doing all they can to protect the data they do hold - Source: The Independent, May 2017.

One Education GDPR Compliance Statement

In common with many other organisations, One Education is currently working to ensure that it meets the GDPR requirement. Whilst still waiting for the final UK legislation to be published, One Education is:

- * Reviewing and updating its data processing activities
- * In communication with our suppliers [and partners/associates] to ensure their compliance
- * Reviewing and refining policies and procedures; and
- * Ensuring that all work practices comply with the EU Regulation and with best practice guidance recommended by the Information Commissioners Office.

One Education takes the security of its customers' data very seriously and will continue to do so. The actions and processes that are being put in place will ensure that our operations are of the highest standards and that the company meets the compliance expectations of GDPR.

What happens when I complete the sign up form?

The data that you provide on this will only be used for electronic marketing purposes and will not be shared with any third parties. You can opt-in, change your preferences, or unsubscribe at any time.

What happens if I do not confirm my subscription?

As of 25th May 2018, we will cease sending emails to anyone who has not re-subscribed. You will not receive any further email marketing from One Education. Service-delivery emails will continue to be sent if you are an ongoing customer.
